

Two hundred and fifty pounders are as easily fitted here as men of more usual build.

We specialize in big, bigger and biggest men's sizes.

In suits, for instance, we not only cut "regulars," but "longs," "shorts" and "Short-stouts"; even when we get up in the larger chest measures. Have the other things in sizes to match.

Big underwear, big shirts, shoes, hats, gloves, collars all the odds and ends of dress so hard to find in big men's sizes.

Everything men and boys wear.

CASSIDY NOW LEADS FUSION IN QUEENS

Voters Have No Choice but Curly Joe's Man Smith or Tammany.

PROMISES GOOD OLD TIMES

Hapgood Committee, Whose
Row Was Boss's Opportunity, Keeps Hands Off.

This is the story of the re-emergence of Curly Joe Cassidy. To go over to Long Island City any morning, climb the dingy stairs of Cassidy's clubhouse on Court Square and watch him recede. He will tell you that he is the only real fusionist, for he is running the Queens county fusion campaign.

Not, of course, the Hapgood campaign. There is no Hapgood fusion campaign in Queens. It died on primary day, when the voters refused to take Robert W. Hapgood, the Republican fusion candidate, whom the Hapgood committee named on the night of July 31 in the Fifth Avenue Building, New York.

The result of that disastrous primary was that Leonard C. Smith, Curly Joe's "one best bet," became the candidate of the Republicans, the Progressives, the so-called Civic Alliance of Queens, even the Prohibitionists.

"I hope," said Smith in accepting Cassidy as the leader of his own regular fusion, "that if I am elected, President of Queens, I will give as good an administration as Joseph Cassidy did in his two terms."

As It Was in Curly Joe's Day.

Curly Joe's administration was remarkable in many ways. He is a great believer in personal liberty, but it is personal liberty of sorts. For instance, if you were a borough employee back in 1903 or thereabout, you had no trouble getting up every week's pay on the paces, but you had to do it in the official presence.

Moreover Cassidy believes in universal good feeling when it comes down to campaign contributions. Don't scan them too closely. He got around about it. Just now he is under indictment in Kings county charged with the corrupt use of $20,000 to obtain the nomination of William Willett, Jr., as Justice of the Supreme Court in the second department. Willett and Louis T. Walter believed in the same generous principle, and they too are under indictment, procured by District Attorney Crosey.

Cassidy's financial good humor isn't limited to campaign contributions. He is just as free and open handed when he is in office. When the voters retired him in the fall of 1905 the records in the office of the clerk of Queens county at Jamaica showed that he had mortgages and property worth $300,000. Besides that trifle Cassidy is credited with owning a racing stable in California. He has a country place at Far Rockaway and sometimes you see Curly Joe's yacht sailing out on the ocean.

Cassidy was inducted into office as manager of the Smith campaign last Sunday. Three hundred of his friends went to the club on Court Square. Leonard C. Smith, fusion candidate for Borough President, was among them. Cassidy became manager forthwith. He announced yesterday that he will be at his club every morning at 11 o'clock and will be at work all the time until election day.

Fusion Now His Opportunity.

Cassidy got hold of the Queens county anti-Tammany parties soon after the fusion committee in New York put up Robert W. Hapgood as their choice for Borough President. A meeting was held at Schuetzen Park, Astoria, to complain against the domination of the Hapgood men. Cassidy and his followers were thrown out of the meeting, but later they got into the meetings of the local fusionists and ultimately succeeded in accomplishing the designation of Smith.

Hapgood is a Republican, but the Republicans turned against him and ran to the Cassidy candidate. The Progressives also took Smith. It is probable that the Anti-Tammany Jeffersonian Democracy, which put tickets in the field in all five boroughs including all the fusion candidates, will take Smith also.

As for the fusion committee here it has decided to keep hands off. As between Cassidy and Tammany a majority of the fusion leaders here would take Tammany, but they don't want to equal the anti-Tammany issue, which they have made the real issue in the campaign.

Other Horn of the Dilemma.

The effect is that Smith, the Cassidy man who wants to give as admirable an administration as Cassidy himself gave the people of Queens four years ago, is opposing Maurice E. Connolly, the present R.

The Fusion Candidate Tells Why He Isn't a Socialist.

SHEEHAN HITS TRACTION PLAN.

Opposes P. spaced Reorganization of Buffalo and Lake Erie Co.

ALBANY, Oct. 7.—Ex-Lieut.-Gov. William F. Sheehan vigorously opposed the proposed plan of reorganization of the Buffalo and Lake Erie Traction Company by its bondholders committee before the up-State Public Service Commission today.

The plan contemplates the foreclosure of the first and refunding bonds of the company, amounting to $7,065,000, and the acquisition of the property of the present company and certain electrical franchises and water rights by a newly organized company.

I was one of five parties who purchased $1,500,000 of the bonds of this company with the same amount of preferred and common stock. I am now at the rate of $30 and for the preferred stock at the rate of $60 per share, as everybody else did."

REVIVALS STIR NEW HUNTINGTON ROW

Pastor, Disturbed by Noise, Says Evangelists' Services Are "Heathens."

APPEALS TO TORMENTORS

Is Told Meetings Will Be Continued—Calls It War on Churches.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Oct. 7.—The open air revival meetings held here by three evangelists, D. R. Morland of Cumberland, Md.; W. J. Segro of Hyndman, Pa., and J. W. Tanner of Terra Alta, W. Va., have caused another fuss.

The Rev. Charles S. Gray, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, became so annoyed recently by the playing of cornets and other musical instruments, the loud singing and preaching on Sunday nights near his church, that he wrote a letter to Evangelist Morland saying that the revival meetings were "dragging down" the old established churches. Mr. Morland replied that he would continue his work as long as there are souls to save.

The meetings of which the pastor complains are held in front of one of the hotels on Main street. The crowds have often blocked the street. The hotel keeper refused to object because he got a lot of extra business when the crowds gathered.

The services conducted by the evangelists are sometimes attended by the members of the churches. It is said, tell those who are not responsive to their pleadings that they can "go to hell if they want to." It is said too that two good women who attended a meeting prayed so violently that people living in the neighborhood could not sleep. Men and women imbued with the spirit of the meetings, according to reports, shouted one another's feet with oil. Sixteen converts were baptized in the waters of Huntington Harbor last Sunday by the evangelists. A great crowd looked on and shouted as each convert disappeared in the water.

Mr. Gray says of the meetings: "It appears that the Gospel Assembly is openly against our church and is trying to get members of our church to join its ranks. We are against this because they are intolerant. They are victims of excessive emotions and when a man loses control of himself he becomes a madman."

"This thing harks back to the days of heathen religion." Several members of Mr. Gray's church got deeply interested in the revivals and wanted to withdraw. They were advised to "wait and be thrown out."

A few months ago a rainstorm, which had been prayed for by the Rev. Charles E. Gregg, destroyed the tent of revivals that were conducting meetings with the aid of a brass band in a lot across the way from Mr. Gregg's fashionable church.

IRVING M. Crane, Progressive leader of the Thirty-second Assembly district, south, moved out of his organization last night and took with him his twenty election district captives. He then allied himself with Eugene J. McGuire and the Jeffersonian Democracy.

Crane said he didn't like the way August Schwarzschild, Progressive leader of The Bronx, had been behaving so he had decided to bolt the Progressive ticket which doesn't include Douglas Matheson, fusion candidate for Borough President of The Bronx, and take up with the McGuire people, who in turn are a league with the Republicans and have endorsed the whole fusion ticket.

McGuire is the ex-Tammany man who got out of the regular organization last June after he had failed to capture the leadership.

HARRISON SPEECH SUITS BRYAN

He Finds Out What Philippians Policy Is, and Likes It.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Secretary of State Bryan sent today from Mount Vernon, N. C., the following comment on the announcement of policy in the Philippines made yesterday by Governor General Harrison:

"I have read the President's declaration of policy with regard to the Philippines with great satisfaction and rejoice that the pledge of the Democratic platform has been fulfilled by the use of ultimate independence."
